

Students With Disabilities

Test your knowledge on learning disabilities! Prior to the start of the lesson, place a “T” for each true statement, and an “F” for each false statement. At the conclusion of the lesson, go over your answers and place a “T” for each true statement, and an “F” for each false statement.

Knowledge Prior to lesson T/F	Question	Knowledge after lesson T/F
	A learning disability is defined as a group of varying neurological disorders that have a negative impact on learning.
	Currently 2.4 million students are diagnosed with learning disabilities and receive special education services in schools.
	The education-related act that ensures services to students who have been diagnosed with a learning disability is called the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA).
	Dyslexia is also known as aphasia or global aphasia, is a learning disability that affects understanding spoken language, poor reading comprehension.
	An Intellectual Educational Procedure (IEP) is the individualized objectives of a child who has been found with a disability, as defined by federal regulations.
	Early intervention in the areas of learning disabilities can better prepare a student for their educational career.
	Apps are a huge part of educational technology for students with learning disabilities.
	Teachers only need to follow accommodations and modifications that they find necessary for students with disabilities.
	Highly qualified teachers must hold at least a master’s degree, be fully certified to teach in Texas and demonstrate competency in their core academic subject area.
	Admission, review, and dismissal (ARD) is a committee who meet regularly to discuss the educational needs of students in the special education program.	