

Where Do You Look?

Most of the information that we find about service organizations, groups and agencies can be found on the Internet. What happens if a family in need does not have Internet access? Where can they look for assistance? The answer is “In the Book” ~ the telephone book, that is! Use a local telephone directory or the Internet to answer the following questions.

1. Locate and provide the name and phone number of a local place where a family can leave a pet that they can no longer care for.
2. Where, in our community, can a battered woman get help?
3. Where, in our community, can a parent take their child to get immunizations?
4. Locate and provide the name, address and phone number of a place in our community where someone could buy second-hand clothing.
5. Locate and provide the name and phone number of one school in our area in which a parent could enroll their seven (7) year old son.
6. Locate and provide the name and phone number of a Hospice organization in our community that can help families cope with a terminally ill family member.
7. Does our community have an agency or organization that provides bereavement counseling for children? If so, provide the name and phone number of the organization.
